ANNUAL MEETING.

THE Annual Meeting of the Society was held, on the evening of May 8th, 1877, at the Second Presbyterian Church, corner of Clinton and Fulton streets, and was largely attended. Rev. Dr. Storrs, President, addressed the audience. The Report, which is herewith presented, having been read, remarks were made by Hon. S. B. Chittenden, Rev. W. I. Budington, D.D., Hon. Richard Frothingham, of Charlestown, Mass., and Joshua M. Van Cott, Esq.

The yearly reports of the Society were regularly published until 1869, and none have appeared since that date. The institution having recently undertaken the enterprise of erecting a building suitable to its needs, and having been favored from this and other causes with a renewed and intensified interest in its behalf on the part of its special friends and of the community generally, the Board deemed this particular period a fit time to begin again the issue of these stated records, and therefore ordered the following to be printed, in connection with a revised and corrected list of the members. Considerable delay has been occasioned by the rapidity with which the membership, now given as at the commencement of the year, has been enlarged during the months of October, November, and December. This very gratifying increase was chiefly due, it need scarcely be said to the marked energy and success of the committee who were appointed to raise the Building Fund. The amount of $100,000 having been subscribed as early as the middle of November, or a day or two after the opening lecture of the season by Hon. George B. Loring, the labor of directing and carrying forward the enterprise to its completion was then duly intrusted to a new committee, consisting of Mr. Samuel McLean, Chairman; Hon. S. B. Chittenden, Mr. A. A. Low, Hon. Henry C. Murphy, Messrs. Henry Sheldon, James R. Taylor, and H. E. Pierrepont; Rev. R. S. Storrs, D.D., President of the Society, and Mr. A. W. Humphreys, its Treasurer. The committee have held numerous meetings, have examined many plans and specifications, and will shortly submit their report to the Board. While this important work of the Society is making vigorous progress, all the other interests and affairs of the institution feel the quickening power of the movement, and justify the most confident hopes of a still nobler growth and wider beneficence in the future.

REPORT OF THE
BOARD OF DIRECTORS
OF THE
LONG ISLAND HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

PRESENTED MAY 8, 1877.

THE Directors, in submitting, in as brief a form as may be, their Report for the year just ended, beg to congratulate the Society, that, notwithstanding the hard and depressing times through which the people have been passing, such as not seldom have the effect to embarrass and cripple literary institutions as well as other commanding interests of the community, they are able to present, on the whole, an encouraging record of progress and a hopeful condition of affairs. If, in certain directions, not all has been done which was fondly expected or honestly intended, yet in others more has been accomplished than could well have been anticipated.

Thus, for instance, however much all classes may have felt more or less straitened in their circumstances in consequence of the disheartening state of things in the financial or business world, the membership of the Society has been largely increased. It will be remembered that, in the earlier history of the institution, each year witnessed a grand accession of numbers to swell the list of members. In the year 1865-66 two hundred new names were added, and in 1866-67 there were three hundred and four. The latter was the year of greatest enthusiasm and success in this particular sphere of effort and ambition, the loss by withdrawals, or by non-payments of dues, having been comparatively small. Then began a decline. In 1867-68 there were two hundred and twenty-eight new members, and in 1868-69 one hundred and forty. And so the diminishing process went on until, in 1873-74, the Society gained only twenty-two new members, while it lost, from removal to other places, from resignation, or from death, eighty—losing fifty-eight more than it gained; and in 1874-75 it gained forty-one and lost one hundred and three—a net loss of sixty-two. About two years ago the Members' Committee was duly appointed and organized, with the view of arresting and setting back this downward tendency, and of otherwise promoting the best interests of the institution. Through the energetic and well-directed exertions of the young men who compose this Committee, there was in the year 1875-76 a net gain of forty-nine members, one hundred and fifty-two new names having been added, and one hundred and three, from causes just referred to, having been dropped; while during the last year, 1876-77, there has been a net gain of seventy, one hundred and fifty-four having been added, and eighty-four dropped. The total Annual Membership is now seven hundred and fifteen. The total Life Membership is four hundred and thirty-five—fifteen having been added since a year ago. So that, whatever the pressure of the times to the contrary, the tide has been turned, and is now running strong and with augmenting volume in the right direction.

Of the fifteen members of the Society who have deceased during the year, special mention should be made of James P. Kirkwood, Rev. H. R. Dickson, Charles Lowrey, E. L. Sanderson, Nathan Lane, and Rufus R. Graves, as well in view of the general esteem and honor in which they were held by their fellow-citizens, as in view of the deep interest which they felt in the prosperity of this institution. We have also to deplore the loss by death of one of the councillors of the Society, Mr. John Harold, of Hempstead, whose excellence of character, combined with his earnest devotion and generous gifts to our cause here in Brooklyn, is most gratefully called to mind at this hour, and will be ever cherished in remembrance by all who know or shall learn of his worth and his services.

At a meeting of the Board held May 16th, 1876, due notice having been previously given, an amendment to the By-laws was considered and adopted, making the whole number of councillors from Kings County twelve instead of six, as it was before. At a subsequent meeting the following gentlemen were elected to fill the six new vacancies thus created: A. B. Baylis, Rev. N. H. Schenck, D.D., Alden J. Spooner, David M. Stone, George L. Nichols, and Peter C. Cornell.

Not to speak of the various meetings of the Board and of its several committees, held from time to time during the year, it is proper to refer particularly to the regular gatherings of the Society, at which have been given the numerous lectures that have proved such a source of satisfaction and instruction to the members. These took place at first in the Brooklyn Athenæum; but early in December it was deemed wise to make a change, and since that time they have been held, it is believed with general approbation, in the Second Presbyterian Church, at the corner of Clinton and Fulton streets.

The dates of these lectures, with the names of the speakers and with the subjects which they treated, are as follows:

November 21st.—Hon. Richard H. Dana, Jr., on "The Moral History of International Law."

December 5th.—Rev. R. D. Hitchcock, D.D., who accompanied with explanatory remarks a very interesting stereopticon exhibition of views of ruins east of the Jordan.

December 14th.—Mr. H. P. Johnston read a paper on "The Battle of Long Island," which was deemed so valuable a contribution to history that it was solicited for publication, and it is expected to appear from the press some time during the coming winter, in an enlarged form, and will be entitled, "The Campaign of 1776 around New York and Brooklyn." Including a new and circumstantial account of the battle of Long Island and of the capture of New York, with a review of events that followed, it will add another volume of about four hundred pages to those of a similar character that have been issued under the auspices of the Society.

January 16th.—Prof. William Harkness delivered a lecture on "The Transit of Venus Expedition," with stereopticon illustrations.

January 30th.—Mr. Bayard Taylor lectured on "Alexander von Humboldt."

February 13th.—Mr. Charles Francis Adams, Jr., read a paper entitled, "The May-Pole of Merry Mount."

February 27th.—Prof. George F. Barker gave a lecture on "The History of Celestial Chemistry."

March 13th.—Rev. George L. Prentiss gave an account of his visit to Hurst-Monceaux and Rydal Mount, and his recollections of Bunsen, Hare, and Wordsworth.

March 27th.—Dr. Leopold Damrosch spoke upon "The Use of Music in connection with Dramatic Purposes."

April 10th.—Mr. Parke Godwin discoursed on "The Theory of Art."

April 24th.—Mr. Verplanck Colvin lectured on "The Adirondacks."

That these lectures—biographical, historical, scientific, and literary—have been generally very much enjoyed by those who have listened to them, and have been regarded as a successful series of intellectual evening entertainments, has been sufficiently evinced by the large audiences that assembled to hear them through the season, and by the numerous expressions of public favor which they have elicited.

Of course it is for the interest of the Society to make membership of it as desirable as possible to all our citizens, by securing the most attractive course of lectures for each winter, and by otherwise increasing the advantages and benefits of the institution. To this end, such larger and more popular meetings as have just been alluded to ought to be confined to those who are actual members. It has been found that when certain well-known and favorite speakers had been advertised to appear before the Society, there were so many, not members, who were eager to be present and to hear, that some stringent rule must needs be adopted, requiring each one on entering to present his ticket at the door. The Board has accordingly adopted such a rule, feeling assured that it is necessary to protect the just rights of the members, and to further the best interests of the Society, however it may from time to time inconvenience those who chance to lose their tickets, or to forget to take them with them. There can be no real ground of complaint, if, as is intended, the rule shall be rigidly enforced, as well in the case of the best known and most prominent, active, influential, or helpful members, as in the case of those whose faces or whose names are less familiar. If the tickets, which are always sent out in due time and with commendable care, are not received in proper season by the persons to whom they are addressed, duplicates may be had by application to the Librarian at the rooms.

A pleasant feature, as connected with the lecture course of the past year, has been the social receptions given to some of the speakers by various members at their own houses, immediately after the close of the public meetings. On these occasions, which have been generously provided for by Bishop Littlejohn, Mr. H. E. Pierrepont, Dr. E. R. Squibb, Mr. Henry K. Sheldon, Hon. S. B. Chittenden, and Mr. A. Augustus Low, the Directors, the Members' Committee, and many earnest friends of the Society have been invited to be present; and, while a suitable mark of respect and honor has thus been shown to the guest of the evening, the effect has also been to make the officers, workers, and patrons of the institution more acquainted with each other, and so to deepen and widen the general interest.

Several other very enjoyable occasions of a festive character, known as the "Directors' Dinners," may also be mentioned. They have had the same object in view as the social receptions just spoken of, but they have presented a better opportunity than have these to secure the presence, words, and sympathy of conspicuous professional gentlemen or servants of the public welfare, from neighboring cities or from a distance. Here, as in regard to so many other matters of the institution, the zeal of the Young Men's Committee has been made manifest. The idea of such annual or more frequent entertainments, or dinners, originated with them, and they themselves have had charge of each one of them, paying the expenses thereof, not, as some may have thought, from the treasury of the Society, but by money given for the purpose by themselves and members of the Board.

The library rooms may not be able to boast so many and so costly accessions to their store of treasures as in some previous years, yet the extent to which such an institution constantly draws to itself the free-will contributions of its friends is partially indicated in the fact that during the last twelvemonth not less than one hundred and seventy persons have sent to these apartments their voluntary offerings, in the form of valuable books, pamphlets, pictures, curiosities, specimens of natural history, or articles of furniture, convenience, or adornment. It were impossible here to make due acknowledgment of all these gifts in any other than a general way, yet it may be permitted to express the Society's sense of special obligation to the Government of Nova Scotia and Brazil for valuable documents relating to those countries; to various historical societies of the United States, in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Montana, Wisconsin, Virginia, Vermont, and New Hampshire, for most acceptable favors which they have sent to us; to Hon. S. B. Chittenden for important publications forwarded from Washington; to the Brooklyn Eagle and Brooklyn Sunday Sun for the files of these journals during the current year; to the widow of Hon. Day O. Kellogg for an interesting file of papers, in two volumes, presented by her in the name of her lamented husband; to Mr. John Jay Pierrepont for a complete set, in seven volumes, of Charles Hallock's publication, Forest and Stream; to Mr. Seth Low for a revolving book-case; and to Messrs. George C. Brackett and Alfred T. White for another useful and tasteful gift in the form of a screen, with numerous views photographed on glass; to Mrs. Hammett, of Columbia Heights, for a life-size portrait of Daniel Webster; to Mr. B. M. Stillwell, for an original and very interesting study of Francis Guy's picture of old Brooklyn, as the city appeared a half century ago; to Mr. J. H. Beal, artist, for a large and admirable photograph of New York, taken from the top of the Brooklyn tower; to Mr. C. C. Martin, principal assistant engineer, for a piece of the first cable stretched across the East River; and to the State of New York for the first instalment of fossils, minerals, and shells, contributed in accordance with the action of the Legislature in 1865, and excavated by Prof. Hall in his official surveys.

These gifts from the State, as arranged in their new glass cases by Mr. Elias Lewis, Jr., the efficient and accomplished chairman of the Natural History Committee, present a fascinating and instructive part of the rich and varied collections of the Society, and, taken in connection with other instalments which may be expected in due time, will constitute a notable feature of the growing wealth and educational influence of the institution. Too much praise can hardly be accorded to Mr. Lewis for the constant interest he has manifested in this department and in that of archæology; for the time he has so gratuitously and cheerfully devoted to them, both in classifying and labelling their specimens and displaying these to the best advantage; and for the services he has rendered in arousing the enthusiasm of others in studies and pursuits which are so engaging and profitable. In this connection it may also be said that, besides the natural history and archæological meetings, which take place on the last Thursday of each month, when it is expected that a paper will be read; and followed by words from various speakers, several informal meetings have been held at the instance and under the direction of the Librarian, to quicken still more the interest in some of these matters; and on one occasion Mr. Charles Hallock presented a number of Indian curiosities, and gave a lecture on topics suggested by them. Remarks were also made by Rev. Dr. C. H. Hall, Mr. Silliman, Col. C. C. Jones, and Mr. Spooner.

But little money has been spent to enrich any department of the Society's collections during the year, for the reason that but little money has been at the disposal of the Directors for this purpose. Yet some valuable additions have been made, especially of cyclopedias, local histories, biographies, and family genealogies. In the kind of literature which is thus generally indicated, the library is already well stocked, and it is believed that no similar institution in the country is more so. The Society has an excellent reputation, far and near, for the accumulations it has made of the class of works alluded to. It might with great advantage still seek to multiply and enlarge its stores of such treasures. Carlyle, referring to certain preparatory researches of his own, while making ready to write one of his celebrated works, said to the students of the University of Edinburgh, "There is a great deal more in genealogies than is generally believed at present." And was he not right? The true philosophy and the real knowledge of history are gained, not alone from an acquaintance with mighty public events and gigantic popular movements, as these are presented to us in the records of the past, but also and more from the story of private individuals and particular families, the annals of towns and counties, the chronicles of small settlements and quiet neighborhoods, and the accounts of manners, customs, laws and institutions within such limited spheres of action and life. Here are the very germs of a nation's future, the very springs of history. The true historian will ever go back to these fountain-heads. The literature that best supplies the demand or need will ever be sought after, and it is always of a precious sort, growing more and more valuable with the progress of time. It makes a library interesting, and causes it to be more and more frequented, as already has been the case with that of the Long Island Historical Society. Such works, being of a local character to a very large extent, are not so well known to the public as to the student, and are not usually advertised, like books of a more popular kind. The suggestion is here made, that the members of this institution, now numbering more than a thousand, and hailing as they do from all parts of the country and from other lands, do what they can and may to add to the stores of the Society such genealogical, family, town, and county histories as may pertain to the localities whence they came, or as they may from this or whatever other cause be specially interested in. They are doubtless acquainted with works of this nature which our excellent Librarian, with all his extensive knowledge of books, is not familiar with; and their contributions will be most gladly and gratefully received. But this particular department is thus spoken of rather by way of illustration. The Society seeks, of course, to be broad and varied in its possessions and advantages, and to be a minister to the intellectual, literary, and æsthetic tastes of many classes of people. This it is now, and it will not allow itself to lose or to impair its influence by making any one interest an all-absorbing specialty.

Happy for the Society, moreover, if every member would exert himself to induce others who have not yet joined it, to avail themselves of its opportunities and benefits. Each one could doubtless bring some one else to enroll his name on the list, and thus the admirable work of the Members' Committee would be greatly encouraged, and the institution itself be made still more a blessing to thousands and thousands in our city.

With a library which now numbers 26,000 volumes and as many pamphlets, and which, with all its attendant treasures of pictures, curiosities, specimens of natural history and archæology, rare manuscripts and precious mementoes, is estimated by competent experts to be worth at least $80,000, and is actually insured for $60,000; with a President of such wide and honorable fame, with a vast and still growing constituency, and with a field of research and operations and usefulness which any such institution might well be proud of—what does the Society need but our united and earnest labor in its behalf, and what but the building, which shall be ample for its needs, and which the vigorous and determined committee who have been appointed for the purpose cannot fail, with your hearty co-operation, to have erected at no distant day?

A. P. PUTNAM,

Chairman of Executive Committee.
